Chaplain's Chats

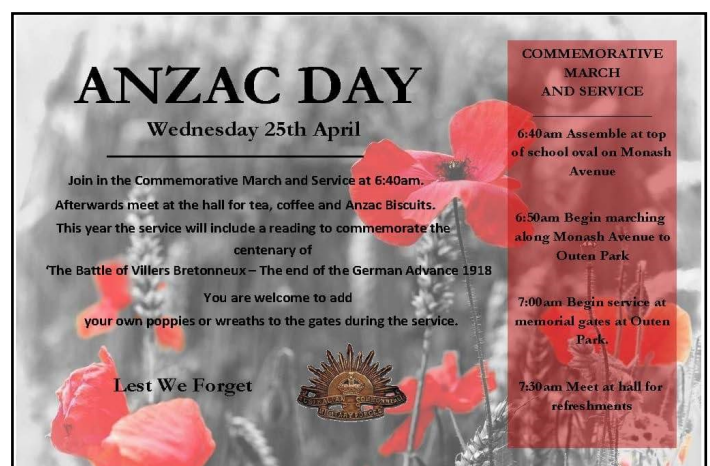

You don't choose your family. They are Gods gift to you, as you are to them. Desmond Tutu

Family life can be complicated, especially in times of tragedy, break ups, illness and financial difficulty. We often don't reflect on the blessings of family when we are faced with difficult family dynamics and can sometimes view family duties as burdens.

However, when situations arise when our family is there to support us or when we are able to offer support back, we are reminded that family is everything. No family is the same and there is much diversity to how a family is constructed and not all members are necessarily biologically related. Families are connected through their hearts and relationships and it is through family that we learn to love, be loved and forgive.
